Volume No. 73

Shortridge Prepares

Ivy twists and spirals itself about a wooden arbor; without it, the green ivy would crawl forever inconspicuously, through the green of the grass. Thus, can tradition give Shartridge a stature and excellence above other schools, much as the arbor gives ivy height and beauty above other plants. Eventually, however, the vine must grow beyond the arbor, lest it grow back upon itself and strangle and rot. Shartridge, too, must release herself from the thrall of tradition—let tradition become heritage—and grow. If indeed we are barn free, it is tradition that can enchain us.

There are those who suggest that in becoming a college preparatory school, we seek only to regain prestige and an economically and culturally sound student body. "Your strength was in your diversity, Shartridge," they say, "and now you purposely destroy it for wealth of another sort." These persons, however, seem not to realize that the desire for academic accomplishment is not limited to any certain economic bracket. We at Shartridge do.

Herein follows how Shartridge prepares to grow again—to let her tradition become proud history and cultivate new stems of excellence—to prepare with a disciplined mind and cultivated heart—elements of power.

Individual Interests Lie In

Walk around 34th Street at 3:25, peek into five o'clock band practices, peer into the Publications Office an hour before a deadline, try to get a Coke during halftime, or walk in on a counselor-student conference . . .

Anywhere, everywhere is an individual massed with the rest yet seeking to strip away the facade of group identification and discover himself.

Realizing that a long day of study and discipline is not entirely conducive to the development of self-willed individuals, Shortridge encourages each student to seek, to find . . . himself.

Fall Induces Preparation for Home

Crisp, chill gusts penetrate the vanishing warmth of early-autumn days. Golden leaves swirl and flutter while we crunch through drifts of dry foliage. Daylight shortens, yet our waking hours lengthen with midnight snacks between cram sessions and seven o'clock breakfasts.

Memories of bookstore and schedule hassles fade as we are jolted into a flurry of renewed activity. We remember tattered, yellowing remnants of a Homecoming float, election campaigns replete with speeches and buttons, and our exploding enthusiasm during the frenzied moments of a combative football game. Non-plussed freshmen study the BLUE BOOK while scurrying seniors digest college catalogues.

coming, Homework and Counseling

Winter's Briskness Revives Energy

Rattling window panes and tossing barren branches, raw winter wind whips our hair and numbs our hands, feet, and cheeks. Booted, mittened, and scarved, we slip and slide down sidewalks glazed with ice. While tracking through newly-fallen snow, we often duck to avoid being plopped in the head by a rock-hard snowball.

In anticipation of Christmas vacation, school assumes a decorative air with the appearance of ornaments, wreaths, and the Student Board tree. Signifying the transition from football to basketball season, pep sessions move indoors as temperatures drop to a prohibitive low.

UPPER RIGHT—Brushing up on the finer points of tennis, Sharon Stepko succumbs to the allure of spring.

Bloom With Activities

Warm, gentle breezes waft softly through musty corridors while billowy clouds, aloft in a pale blue sky, beckon us to contemplation. Trees and flowers budding to vibrant bloom surround us in dazzling color. Spring, the season of new life, engulfs and tempts us. We burst forth, eager to share Nature's renaissance and to abandon responsibility. Sauntering home, warmed by sunshine or soaked by a sudden shower, we shift our thoughts to spring sports, white dinner jackets and long, enchanting formals, the promise of summer and relaxation, and the fleeting days left in which we must fulfill the year's work.

Summer Signifies, Heat, Jobs, Liberty

ABOVE—Solitude creates an environment of refuge and contentment along a rippling river.

RIGHT—Finding that lazy summer days can be transformed into full ones by a job, Lindo Cooper aids a customer.

Summer . . . a signal of the end of the school year . . . the time of relaxing and catching up.

Bright, glaring, blue and alabaster, the sky stares down upon us. The green of the leaves makes the possibility of study very remote. After a week or so of absolute repulsion toward any sort of mental exercise, we begin to concern ourselves with finding a warm-weather occupation.

Those with ambition enough to remain for summer school struggle with Poe and participles, and teachers and students alike mop their brows in the heat. Others, who favor money in lieu of credits, forsake leisurely hours in the pool for more lucrative hours on the job.

UPPER RIGHT—Whoopee! School's out!

Shortridge Cheerleaders Support School

Cheery smiles and words of encouragement can inspire a sportsman. Later, the memory of that reassurance may rally him.

Shortridge cheerleaders arouse and encourage the spirit of team and students alike. Clinging to the bleachers, we augment their thunderous expression of support.

Leading the school in its athletic pursuits, the cheerleaders organize the booster section and govern the uproarious early-morning pep sessions. The production of elaborate posters advertising the games and tags heralding victory also falls within the realm of their duties.

Working diligently throughout any season, the cheerleaders ready us for sports.

Shortridge Prepares— her method Academics

It is significant that of our pastimes, study is by far the most important. We study five days a week, seven hours a day. We read; we take notes; we memorize, and we study. Despite the tendency of other activities to split us into groups of opposing interests, study unites us as it is a common denominator.

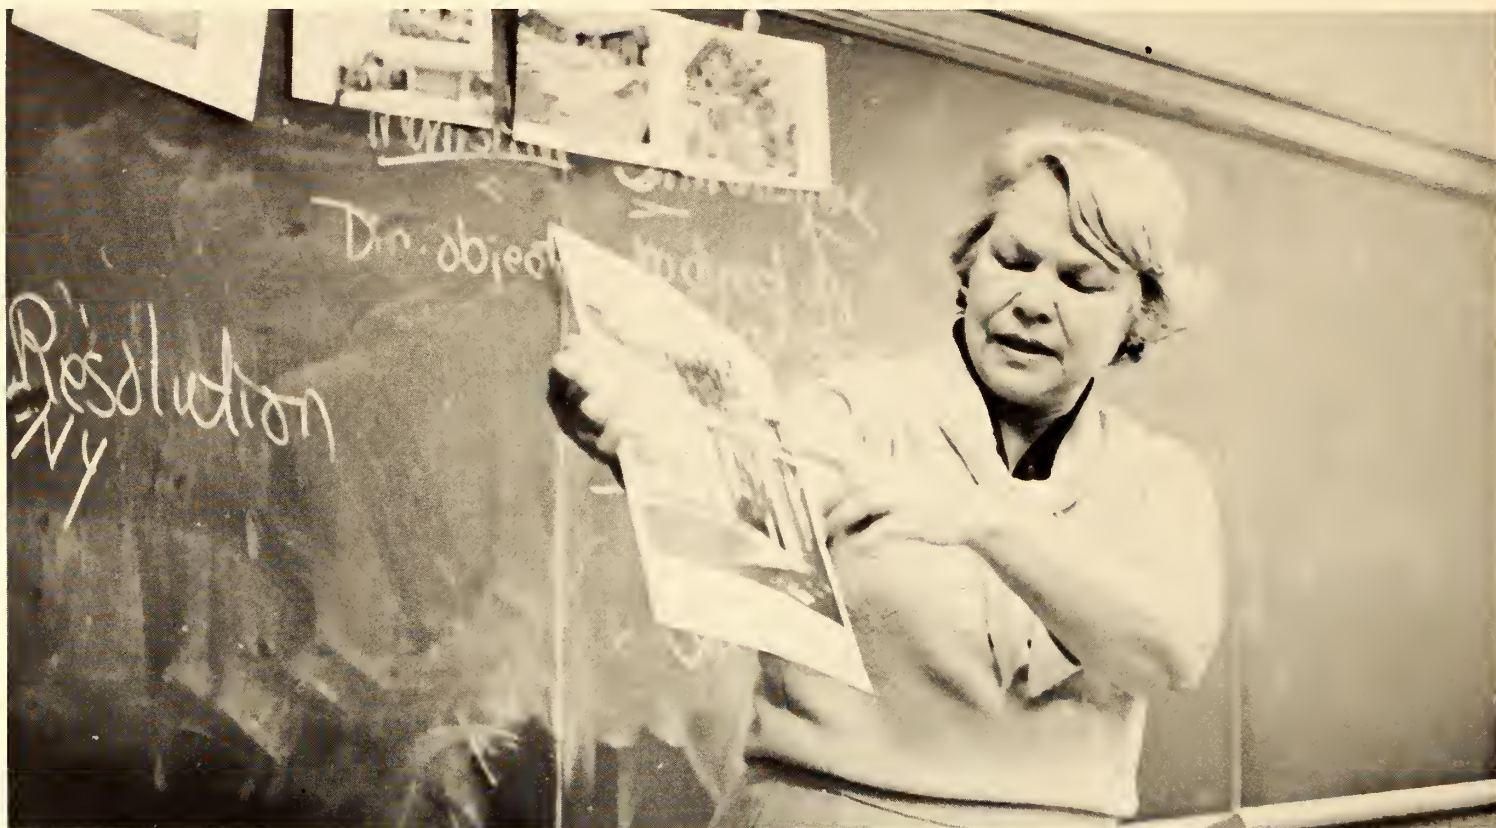

Granted, we study a myriad of subjects, and solving a calculus problem differs greatly from researching a history paper; nevertheless, the exercise of intellectual activity involves the same sweat and toil for any difficult subject.

Learning, in essence, is a matter of individual preparation. As we prepare, our common tool, study, unifies us—makes our student body whole.

Enriched

This year the English department introduced a new curriculum to freshmen. Newcomers thoroughly studied classics and mythology, and received a much stronger reading enrichment program. Incorporating 700 new books, the Charity Dye Library offered a wide variety of reading material. Pupils also studied in this quiet area during lunch and free periods.

Sophomores tackled SILAS MARNER and JULIUS CAESAR, while juniors reviewed punctuation and grammar in preparation for the English V essentials test in November. Seniors chanted the original Middle English CANTERBURY TALES in English literature and wrote précis and journals in composition classes.

A new course, Creative Writing, was offered in January for any student who demonstrated ability in writing and who was in English V or above.

History Challenges Students To Read, Study,

Under the new leadership of Thomas Payne, the history department continued its goal of enlivening history every day. To keep abreast of the times, U.S. History and Government and Economics students subscribed to such current affairs publications as TIME, U.S. NEWS and WORLD REPORT, and THE WALL STREET JOURNAL. Books and maps dealing with recently developed areas in history provided a new approach to familiar courses. The presentation of world history changed through the use of a new textbook that stressed general concepts instead of specific facts. New psychology texts modernized that course by making it more scientific.

One of the more visibly noticeable changes in the department was the physical arrangement of the reference room. Larry Burdick and Mr. Payne devised a plan to eliminate the congestion there by forming two separate cage lines, one for U.S. history and the other for world history.

Several Foreign Countries Studied While

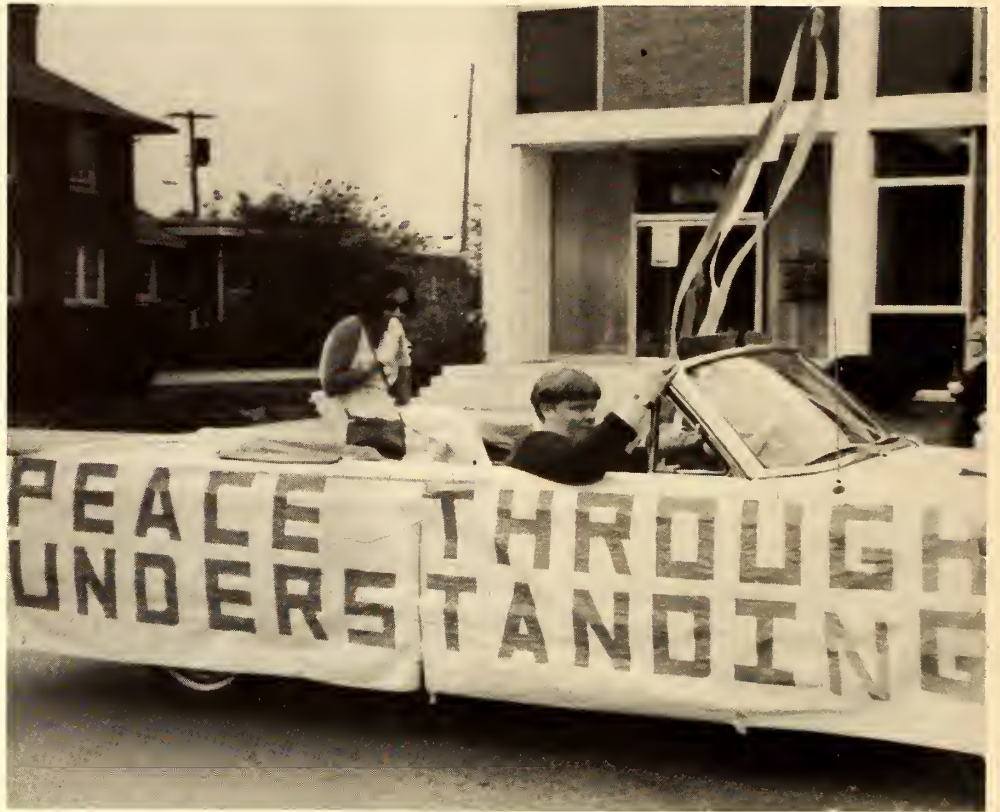

Bonjour, Guten Tag, Buenos Días, alpha, beta, gamma, or nominative genitive, dative, and accusative may greet the person who walks down the language corridor at Shortridge. This year extra classes were created to meet the greater demand for the five languages offered.

With the aid of the library, the department obtained more supplementary reading. An overhead projector, sets of tapes, records, and filmstrips assisted daily class drill, writing, and reading.

This year's representatives abroad were Holly Carroll and Jan Clark, both of whom spent two months in St. Brieuc, France, and Pat Forbes, who went to Krefeld, Germany. Attending a two-week Latin conference at Indiana University were Jeff Holmgren and Stuart Miller.

Calculating Mathematicians Unravel

Survey Mathematics, a course concerned with mathematical inventions since the time of Euclid, was offered for the first time this year. Its purpose was to broaden the scope of mathematical studies available to the Shortridge student. Guest speakers, films, biographical studies, and a field trip to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry enlivened and expanded the course.

Two new overhead projectors were purchased to facilitate instruction in the more advanced classes. Projection materials illustrated theories, problems, and concepts from all branches of math.

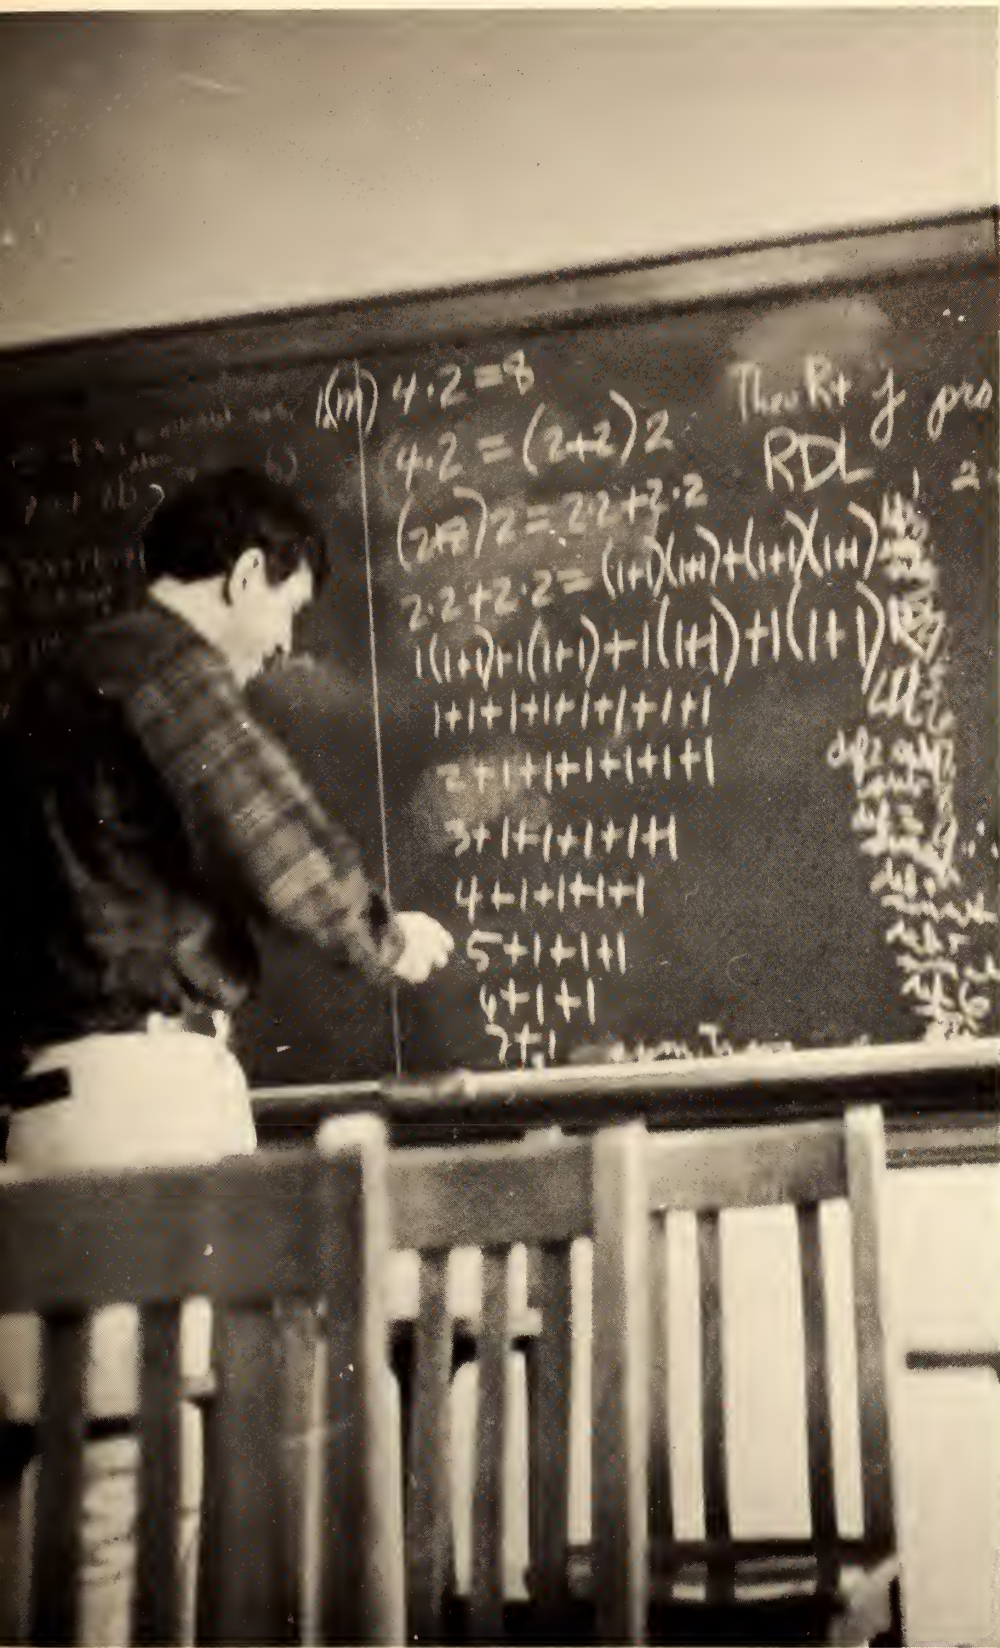

Such courses and materials relieved student slaving and assisted in presenting the basics necessary for the study of mathematics.

Birds and bees and buoyancy rarely change, but the science departments modernize. Biology rooms assumed an impressive air with overhead projectors and a new set of microscopes.

In the chemistry department students burrowed into their old algebra books for help with the newly-presented math theory. Physics students were aided by new texts, yet they too encountered the usual mathematical difficulties. New equipment in that department included a ripple tank and optical and electrical materials.

Student testing and reorganization of the curriculum, with consideration of student needs, continued throughout the year.

New Equipment Furnished in Bus. Dept.

Welcomed by business students and teachers alike were new pieces of equipment in the business department. A varityper, headliner, and a collator, which replaced typewriters and standard duplicators, were used in making bulletins, name cards, and posters.

Advanced typists became temporary beginners again as they adjusted to the light touch of the 24 new electric typewriters. The installation of these multi-colored machines made typing much faster, but presented a fresh problem; students now had to remember to turn off the machines when finished.

Learning Skill—Main Goal for Students

Saws, drills, and printing presses ground mechanically in the industrial arts wing as shop students practiced vocational skills on modern facilities. In the new pre-engineering course students studied electronics and blue-printing.

In the second floor corridor the steady whirr of sewing machines drifted into the hall. Tantalizing odors permeated the air while students applied their nutritional and budgeting knowledge in meal planning.

New drivers emerged from their first tense trip "behind the wheel" amazed at the mysterious gadgets on their cars. Stops and starts became less jerky as drivers polished their driving dexterity. Mechanical problems, complex patterns, and automotive maneuvers alike focused on one objective—the development of a skill.

Drooping, bobby-pinned hairdos and baggy trousers confronted first-year Director Leonard Behling when the Shortridge Marching Band added girls. Enthusiastic performances swelled school spirit during sports events and provided entertainment at the annual Sweaterman's Concert.

The orchestra competed in the Indianapolis Orchestra Contest and accompanied the Concert Choir in the "Little Choral Classic."

In the fall Indiana University's "Singing Hoosiers" and the "Tom Preble Trio" launched the vocal music activities by performing in the Choral Benefit. Proceeds from this event subsidized the spring Choral Classic sung by the A Cappella Choir. During the Christmas season, music groups presented a Christmas program on WFBM-TV.

Citizenship, Maintain Many S.H.S. Traditions

Under the leadership of a new commandant, Master Sergeant Jerome Baker, the 105 Shortridge ROTC cadets practiced skills that develop good citizenship and promote the Army Reserve Officers Corps. ROTC participants maintained SHS traditions such as the daily flag-raising in front of the school. They also ushered, attended doors, and checked coats at the Family Frolic, PTA Open House, Junior Vaudeville, and the Senior Class Play. The Veteran's Day Parade which included the Drill Team, the Military Ball on April 14, and the Federal Inspection highlighted the year.

The Drill and Rifle Teams perfected their marching and shooting skills and the Officers Club assisted Sergeant Baker with his duties.

Sportsmanship Taught in S.H.S. Phys. Ed.

Apparatus, relays, dances, and exercises are all characteristic of the physical education program at Shortridge. From the first period to the ninth, students work to achieve the fitness and prowess needed for a healthy life. Not only is fitness achieved, but a sense of sportsmanship and teamwork is developed. Tired, aching muscles are symbolic of the hard work of those wishing to be physically strong. Both boys and girls appreciate the importance of a sound body. Exhibitions, good grades, and inter-squad victories are the rewards for those who take advantage of the facilities in physical education.

Shortridge Prepares — her diversion

Activities

Our life at Shortridge is a jigsaw of interlocking pieces which create a picture of friendship, leadership, and scholarship. Though concentrating our time mainly on scholarship, we still seek a diversion from books, tests, and study with days of activity which often extend from dawn to dusk. Crawling out of bed, we sleepwalk to yawn-filled 7:30 meetings; then, ignoring the 3:15 bell, we rush to coordinate club plans, beat deadlines, or engage in brain-racking literary or philosophical debates. Occasionally, routines are further brightened by laughter over unsteady Homecoming floats, or exhaustion from mud-splattered hiking trips or endless Vaudeville rehearsals.

As we prepare at Shortridge, we strive to become complete, well-rounded persons. We may justify delaying study-time in favor of extra-curricular activities for these activities will expand our practical knowledge. We seek only a diversion, but upon its discovery, we unlock an entire world of learning through activity.

Enthusiastic Students Sacrifice Free Periods,

While pounding typewriters or silently mouthing the alphabet, yearbook editors and assistants burrowed through piles of candid pictures, which needed cutlines; copy, which needed editing; and miles of liners and literally thousands of underclassmen pictures, which needed to be alphabetized. Furrowed brows were obvious symptoms of the pressure of looming deadlines in the ANNUAL staff's niche of the publications office.

Though the tasks involved in the production of a yearbook remain stabilized, the book itself changes with its editor. This year's Editor-in-chief Lesley Mikels instituted a mosaic, three-column layout which replaced the previous two-column plan. Improvements in the staff were made as 40 enthusiastic workers sacrificed free periods, vacations, early mornings and late evenings to record accurately the history of the year. Replacing the previous two-man staff, six underclassmen editors, two for each class, handled the momentous task of taking and organizing the freshmen, sophomore, and junior pictures.

Deadlines, copy, galleys, proofs—the language of journalism filled room 124 as editors and reporters worked to send each day's ECHO to press. Echoites also contributed to the high school editions of the STAR and NEWS.

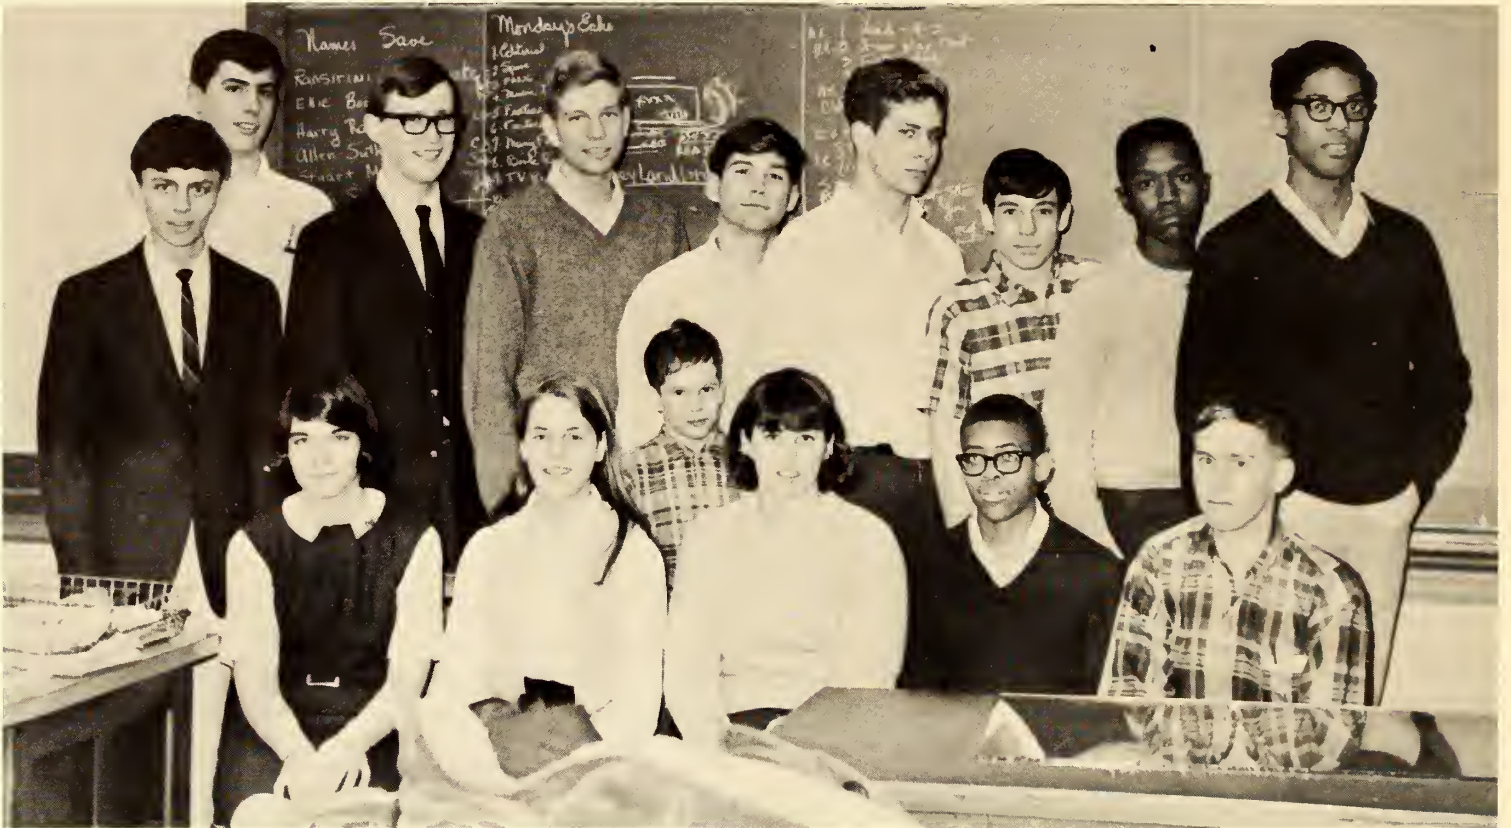

Under the guidance of Miss Jean Grubb, returning adviser, the paper added more class columns and features.

Several special issues were printed besides the traditional pink, blue, and yellow Family Frolic editions. The sesquicentennial issue honored Indiana in her 150th year, and one Wednesday ECHO depicted the Shortridge Band's 1941 trip to Newport for the christening of the U.S.S. Indiana. Honoring Shortridge for her past and present achievements, the Shortridge Day paper was one of two specials in May. The other, the Awards Day issue, honored students for their scholastic achievements.

Book Clubs Investigate Classics

Meeting to analyze and discuss well-known literature, Shortridge's Great Books Clubs divided into two groups, the Junior-Senior Club and the Freshman-Sophomore Club. Sponsored by Mrs. Ruth Paller and Mrs. Jane McElroy, the junior-senior group discussed such works as ANTIGONE and the book of JOB from the BIBLE. The freshman-sophomore group read Plato's REPUBLIC and Sir Thomas More's UTOPIA.

Adventure and twentieth-century authors were the keynotes of the material which the Campus Book Club read and discussed. Sponsored by Mrs. Rosemary Carpenter, CBC studied *KON-
TIKI* and THE PEARL.

Honoraries Encourage Good Writing

Creative writing and exacting journalism were the respective goals of Fiction Club and Quill and Scroll. Members of Quill and Scroll, a national honorary in journalism, planned an agenda consisting of a different activity each month. Fiction Club, also an honorary, cultivated good creative writing by submitting stories to magazines and writing impromptu compositions at the meetings.

Two Girls' Clubs Serve Shortridge

Elected on the basis of citizenship and service to the school, Girls League representatives organized a get-acquainted tea for freshman and a Christmas service for a welfare home. They also sold Frolic tickets and elected ROTC sponsors and Homecoming candidates.

True Blue members, affiliated with Girls League, operated the Lost and Found and assisted in the Dean of Girls Office.

Vocations Stressed By Active Clubs

Stressing business as a career, Future Business Leaders of America toured Mallory Technical Institute, heard speeches by city business leaders, and attended machine demonstrations. Sponsored by Mrs. Beverly Magnuson, the group also planned social activities such as the Christmas party-buffet dinner in the library.

Future Teachers of America, sponsored by Mrs. Esther Hillman, discussed phases of teaching at their meetings and had individual discussions with student teachers. Mrs. Betty Cahn, Shortridge remedial reading specialist, lectured concerning reading problems.

Clubs Hear Speakers, Discuss Politics

Liberals, conservatives, and moderates alike found a home for their political affiliations in the newly-founded Political Discussion Club. This bi-partisan group aired conflicting political views, both national and international. Meetings were conducted by Roberts' Rules of Order, but members often became so enthusiastic that they were temporarily "thrown out."

History Club initiates, after meeting the club's requirements of a B average in history and the submission of an outline suitable for a speech, raised money by selling Indiana Sesquicentennial wall hangings. Besides participation in the Indiana Junior Historical Society the club also sponsored history seminars and invited guest speakers to some of the meetings. On the lighter side of their activities was the annual Bridey Murphy historical masquerade and the Christmas pitch-in for alumni.

HISTORY CLUB—Front Row: Susie Corlton (Hist.), Mory Fotout (Corr. Sec.), Herbert Hughes (Treas.), Steve Horwitz (Pres.), Kathy Moore (Rec. HRC Works for a Better Community

Man's self-created problems were the primary concern of the Human Relations Council. Helping at the Flanner House day-care center by arranging field trips and by tutoring dominated the Council's community projects. The annual city-wide conference in January, based on "Human Rights," featured speakers and panel discussions. A secondary purpose of the conference was to interest other students in establishing a council at their own schools.

The main goal of the Council was to extend its principles throughout Shortridge. A step in this direction was the continuation of the Big Brother-Big Sister Program. Hoping to make the period of freshman adjustment as easy as possible, Big Brothers and Sisters encouraged attendance at coke parties and individual meetings to develop friendship between upperclassmen and freshmen.

Concentration Critical to "Thinking Men"

Once every week during tenth period the members of the Chess Club huddled around their respective chess sets, deeply engrossed in the strategy of their favorite game. These students played chess among themselves and competed against other schools as a team.

The exercise in Knowledge team using questions which were submitted by the faculty, met each day to practice and prepare for future meets. Following a competition early in the school year, nine finalists were chosen during a practice session by a faculty panel. These finalists were then assigned either to the varsity team or to the reserve team. The varsity participated in televised matches with other schools and competed for a championship trophy.

Chili, Rathskeller, Togas Represent

Information about Spanish-speaking countries was learned in Spanish Club through such activities as a dinner catered by a Spanish restaurant and guest speakers who showed slides and described their native lands.

Other language clubs also lived and learned their languages. Le Cercle Francais conducted monthly meetings in French to give students practice in conversation while German Club added a dash of foreign flavor to the Family Frolic with their Rathskeller, a replica of a German beergarden, run by members dressed in native costume. SPQR, the Latin club, represented Old Rome in the Homecoming parade with members dressed in dyed, cheesecloth togas and sandals.

Math Clinic About Science of Numbers

Activity-wise, Hi-Pi, Math Club, and Mu Alpha Theta worked as one, sponsored by Miss Ellen Ocker and Miss Lucille Wahl. Their activities included decorating a Homecoming float and celebrating at their annual Christmas party. They also invited students from other schools to the spring seminar at Shortridge to hear a mathematician speak about the science of numbers.

Support and Service — Main Goals

Adding color, versatility, and moral support to the "Marching Blue Devils," the four majorettes choreographed half-time routines, complete with costumes and props, and marched in the band's parades.

As members of the Red Cross, girls in Home Economics assisted others by filling disaster kits for Vietnamese families and by sending Christmas dolls to underprivileged children while Library Club members aided in the library by filing and doing clerical jobs.

Replacing the Chemistry-Physics Club, the new Physical Science Club allowed chemistry, physics, and physical science students to combine their interests in science.

Informative and stimulating science seminars provided movies, demonstrations, field trips, and lectures by guest speakers for club members and selected students.

Bolstering its membership this year, SEPAC, the Scout's Emergency Patrol, adopted girls into its ranks. Besides earning merit badges while in the Patrol, the scouts also performed school services. Painting S's on cafeteria trash bins and updating bulletin boards busied them; for recreation they played interclub table tennis.

Whether spelunking, hiking, or taking bird censuses, Naturalist Clubbers "communicated with nature." A steering committee of twelve, selected by the club's officers and by Sponsor Richard Wood, planned the invigorating monthly field trips. Boarding buses in the predawn darkness, naturalists visited such state parks as Spring Mill and Jasper Pulaski. While trooping about the parks enjoying nature and observing wildlife, members encountered hazardous streams which they had to ford and caves in which they got lost. This vigorous activity sharpened appetites, even for runny peanut-butter or limp celery packed many hours earlier in box lunches.

A new project on this year's trips was the search for owls. Besides observing nature, naturalists improvised football games at the parks and serenaded each other on the bus trips home.

Footlights Doubles Its Membership

Increasing its membership by approximately 60, Footlights Club nearly doubled in size this year. These apprentice-actors learned to apply make-up, to interpret lines, and to help backstage during productions.

After completing 100 hours of work, a Footlighter could advance to Thespians, a nation-wide dramatic society, which sponsored this year's All-School Play.

Composing original folk songs and singing traditional ones illustrated the purpose of Folk Club: the enjoyment of folk music by its members.

Tri-Hi-Y, Y-Teens Serve City

Sponsored by Mrs. Louise Ridley, Y-Teens' main goal of the year was the integration of the club. A special tea to introduce possible new members to the group required that each member bring one guest. The annual Toyland dance was staged at the YMCA. Admission was one toy per couple and each dues-paying member invited two couples as her guests. Margaret Komisars and Suzy Anderson headed a service committee which planned ways to aid and entertain persons in nursing homes.

Tri-Hi-Y, sponsored by Mrs. Rosemary Carpenter, fulfilled its purpose of extending throughout the home, school, and community, high standards of service and character by filling and distributing Thanksgiving boxes to needy persons. The club also sponsored a church visitation program in order to gain a broader understanding of other religions, and participated in a mock United Nations with students from other schools.

WIAN-FM, the voice of the Indianapolis Public Schools, has its studios and transmitter on the third floor of Shortridge. By working in the station, both Shortridgers and students from other city high schools get practical experience in the world of radio. Each school day WIAN broadcasts a regular schedule of educational programs for in-school instruction, and on Friday evenings it brings its listeners special programs, such as high school sports and music concerts.

Additions to this year's broadcasting schedule included wrestling coverage, poetry readings, and further participation by students from other schools.

"How To Succeed in Business"—Appropriate

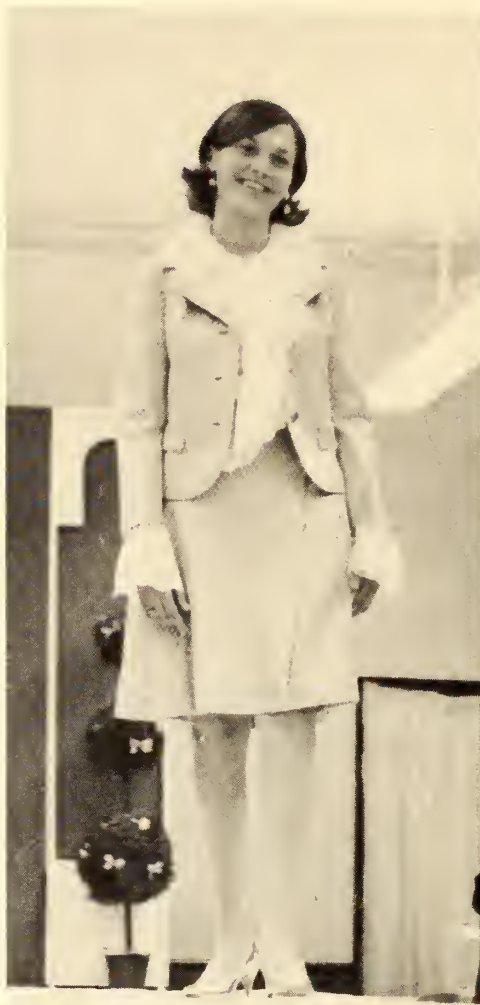

Waves of laughing, eating Frolic-goers, seeking amusement and food, noisily jammed the once astute and dignified Shortridge corridors. Hot dogs, popcorn, and orange drinks held hunger in abeyance during the Auditorium musical, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

The theme of the Frolic, "How to Succeed", dominated as competitors challenged each other to games of skill in the gym or Game Room. Figuring prices in their heads, thrifty housewives searched for bargain-priced canned goods and housewares in the library which had turned into a Country Store. Girl-watchers and fashion-conscious Shortridgers eyed the Frolic Fashion Show, co-ordinated by the Wm. H. Block Company.

"I Love You Vaudeville" Theme of 1967

Mystery and intrigue keynoted the Class of 1968's Junior Vaudeville, directed by VV Chairman Jennie Lowe on February 16, 17, 18, 1967.

Two of the four acts reverted to the Roaring '20's and '30's-era of syndicates, speakeasy raids, the Charleston and Big Apple, and Nancy Drew type detectives. "By Hook or By Crook" involved the shady dealings of underworld boss Mike Manly whose illegal club 'flourished until an unexpected Re-touchables raid put him out of business. "Support Your Local Police Force" tried to stamp out crime as Tracey Clue, girl detective, tracked in vain, a jewel thief, although it was the "maid who did it".

Also involved in mystery, "Who Killed Old Man Rivers?" solved the murder of old miser Charles B. Rivers. The fourth act "Garrulous Gossip", though not including criminals, still contained a "villain", the local busybody.

Student Board Co-ordinates AFS Day

Whether preparing for Homecoming, decorating for Christmas, or selling candy, the Student Board strove to be representative of the ideas and attitudes of the entire student body.

The sponsoring of AFS exchange student Ransirini Senanayake from Kandy, Ceylon, was a major responsibility of the Board. A standing committee was created to aid the program and to sponsor AFS Day.

New activities included the establishment of a Central Club Coordinating Council and the sponsoring of a spring dance. Tom Henderson replaced Thomas Payne as co-sponsor with Mrs. Eugenia Hayden. The year's agenda concluded with Shortridge Day.

Shortridge Prepares — her spirit

Athletics

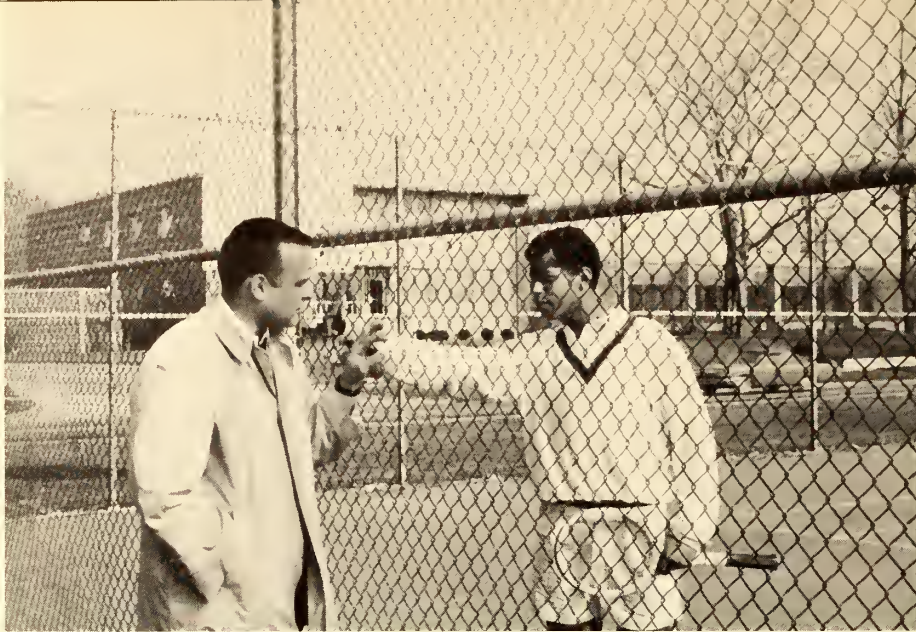

More than a mere outlet for energy, more than simply a physical training program, athletics is a development of the spirit of sportmanship and fair play, demanding thought, desire, and courage.

Serving a dual purpose, athletics not only expands school spirit as some 2800 of us Shortridgers mentally throw each pass or dribble down-court in the vigorous struggle for victory, but also prepares the athlete, himself, both mentally and physically.

The strained muscles, sweat, and tears suffered during weeks of rigorous physical training slip from memory during the intensity of competition. Teamwork prepares the athlete to share praise and criticism equally. Accepting victory humbly or defeat graciously, the players unite as a team.

Happiness Is a Coach Who Cares

Early morning risers who skipped breakfast at home were greeted with doughnuts and milk in the cafeteria this year. With money made from operating the before-school doughnut sale, the Lettermen's Club bought new uniforms for Satan wrestlers. During basketball season they supervised floor traffic at halftime and cleaned up after the games. The club also awarded a trophy to an outstanding senior in each of the eight sports.

Besides their service projects, the lettermen attended the Michigan-Indiana game and visited a Shortridge alumnus who played for IU.

'67 Homecoming Initiates Larger Parade

Seniors cancat a bug-bamb ta annihilate Ritter.

Underclassmen constructed floats and anticipated Homecoming in a properly festive manner while seniors nostalgically anticipated their last Homecoming as students. Marching to Julius Field, the Blue Devils Band led the 31 floats and convertibles which jammed traffic at 38th and Meridian Streets. Excited participants waved to passers-by who crowded the two and one-half mile parade route.

Ripping through eight foot tall paper signs which spelled Shortridge, the Satans tore onto the field to crush Ritter, 44-6. At the conclusion of the halftime presentation, the band formed a heart through which the queen and princess candidates rode to await the announcement of the 1967 court. Queen Ransi Senanayake, AFS exchange student, and Princesses Chris Reimer, Susan Reimer, and Rena Benrubi presided over the Homecoming Dance which honored the victorious team.

"The pause that refreshes."

Although the Shortridge football team was able to produce only a 2-7-1 record, the winning margin of opponents was narrow. In more than half of the games that were lost the Blue Devils were leading until the fourth quarter.

For the first time in recent gridiron history the team had the added offensive threat of field goal and extra-point kicker Rudi Losche. Starting in midseason, he was used on numerous occasions, and completed a high percentage of his kicks.

Coach Benbow credited the title of leading scorer and rusher to Halfback Wayne Curley, who scored 43 points during the season. The coach also said that Phil Snorden, Reginald Butler, James Gardner, and Tim Huxhold were most outstanding on defense. John Andrews, who plays end position, was elected to the NEWS All City starting team.

Blue Devils Win "City" In 3 Overtimes

With the fuel gauge coughing on empty, the mighty Blue Devils came from nowhere to keep a personal promise to their coach and school by taking the city basketball championship. Where the gas came from nobody knew. "We never gave up — that's how we won," summed up center Damon Ellison.

Indeed, just as Shortridgers had been rasping since the tourney's beginning, it was finally "all over." Cheering, hundreds of Devil faithfuls poured onto the floor to raise the arms of the victors while many still turned to check the scoreboard to be sure they had won.

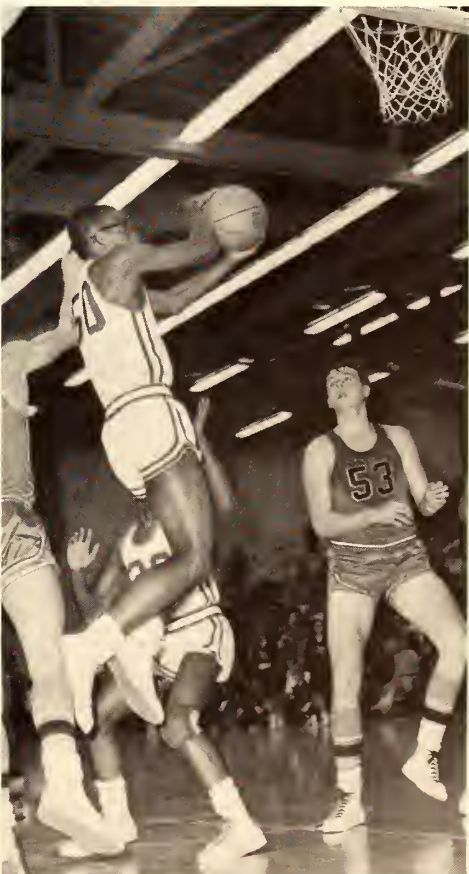

Affable Coach "Theo" endured two tension-packed thrillers and four overtimes in that one day, yet he still displayed affection for "his boys" and tried to keep his sense of humor. "I know you're going to win it, boys. You're just trying to give me a little thrill," he joked.

"Shortridge Team Sure Was Good to Us"

Sectional and regional victories tasted sweet to rookie Coach George Theofanis and "his boys" after a long drought which had not seen an SHS team in tourney play for 27 years.

The varsity fought out two thrillers to capture the first sectional crown since 1940. Proving their ability to keep poised under pressure, the Satans outlasted Warren in a triple overtime and came from behind with less than a minute on the clock to beat Lawrence in the final game.

An electrified regional final game pitted Tech and SHS in their third bout of the year. Keyed up and chilly the entire first quarter, Tech missed its first 15 tries and Shortridge connected on only one of ten shots attempted. Warming up, the Satans led 29-15 at the half and rolled on to earn a berth in the Sweet 16.

Beating Greensburg in the afternoon semifinal, the Devils battled New Castle to the wire in the touch and go night windup. After trailing by as many as eight points in the last quarter, the Devils evened it 49-49 with only a fraction of a minute left. As the clock ticked to two seconds, New Castle scored on a 20-foot jumper which handed the Devils their sixth season loss, the first in their last 12 games.

Winning the state championship for the second time in Shortridge's history, a fiery wrestling team under the direction of George Bohlin, finished an already successful season with a whollop. Placing first in both the Kokomo tourney and the city tourney, the Satan team finished second in the sectional where John Bush, Lawrence Gordon, James Gardner, Charles Blackwell, and Desmond Smith qualified for the regional. In the regionals the team claimed first place with three individual champions who thus qualified for the state tourney. These boys were Gardner in the 145 pound class; Blackwell, last year's state champ and three-time sectional and two-time regional winner, at 154 pounds; and Coleman at 180. In the state competition Shortridge won 25 points to become the 1967 champion. Gardner was the individual champion with Blackwell second and Coleman third.

Winning the mile relay, the half-mile dash, and the shot put, Roy Aberson's tracksters managed a third place in the city meet. In the sectional the Satans were able to grab fourth place, qualifying three men for the regional. These were Dillon in the half-mile, Johnson in the shot put, and Roy Upchurch in the high jump.

Roy Upchurch won a letter and Mel Johnson received the Stuart Wilson Award for the best all-round senior athlete at Shortridge. Barry Dillon was voted the most outstanding member of the squad and was designated for the best single performance of the year because of his new record of 1:55.5 in the half mile.

Shortridge Prepares— her tool Faculty

As Shortridge prepares us, we are inevitably aware of the value of her most outstanding tool—the faculty. Each teacher is an instrument of learning; however, he is helpful only if the student accepts his guidance. A teacher cannot impart his knowledge, but he can stimulate ideas in the seemingly impenetrable mind of the student. Although learning is an individual process which must be motivated by an innate desire to learn, the teacher can direct, influence, and mold the progression of that learning.

The spirit and ability of our faculty constantly inspires us to fulfill academic goals. Their efforts have produced professional, industrial, and governmental leaders in the past, and through our association with these dedicated instructors we shall become better citizens in our community.

Administration Reviews SHS Through

PRINCIPAL
ROBERT J. SHULTZ

Preparation is the goal of administrators and faculty as they build foundations for firm futures. This year preparation was especially significant as the entire school readied itself for the North Central Association Evaluation which took place during the third week of March.

Teachers often assembled in thought-provoking committee meetings in the library or cafeteria until five o'clock. Reports, representing hours of debates and voting, concerned such topics as "Student Activity," "Philosophy and Objectives," and "Social Studies." The surveys were eventually presented in a series of faculty meetings and each was individually accepted.

The study provided a candid look in depth at Shortridge, and any improvements as a result of the evaluation showed that throughout this year the focal point of the faculty remained on its students and their betterment.

Shortridge Prepares— her foundation Underclassmen

Shortridge's tradition, heritage, and most important, her future, depends upon her foundation—the underclassmen. Her construction has its strength in their preparation and achievement.

The freshman watches events, amazed. Gradually he accustoms himself to the accelerated academic and social activity. The sophomore, wise with the security of a year's experience yet still frisky, tackles the events which eluded him last year. The junior, surging with new confidence and sophistication, begins to assume leadership.

The underclassmen observe, participate, and organize. They come to Shortridge to build the foundation for their futures yet in this process they simultaneously sustain the construction of Shortridge.

Shortridge Prepares— her yield Seniors

Now we are leaving. We climb nervously upon a platform to receive a piece of paper that represents four years of preparation, but it is not just the diploma which makes our hands tremble. We have grown up.

We are adults and we are afraid; indeed, there is a great deal in being saddled with an adult's responsibility. No longer can we rely upon our parents and teachers; we must rely upon ourselves.

We file out of the Coliseum to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," and some of us begin to notice a few tears quietly slipping from the corners of our eyes. That, and the pangs inside are because we have suddenly realized that we are parting from our friends, casual and close. We shall never again share the joy of youthful, careless laughter. Those days are gone.

Four years of preparation are behind us, and now we are leaving.

Seniors Serve Shortridge With Spirit,

Aided by Senior Class Sponsor Mrs. Dorothy Otto, the senior council and the senior officers selected this year's ANNUAL dedicatee, Miss Ellen Ocker.

Miss Ocker, who has been a part of the Indianapolis school system for forty years, has been in charge of orienting new faculty members at Shortridge. She wrote the SHORTRIDGE TEACHER'S MANUAL and was one of the original authors of the BLUE BOOK in 1925. She was recently on the committee which revised that book in 1964.

Following the dedication announcement, Principal Robert J. Shultz stated, "No one on the Shortridge staff has done more of lasting value than Ellen Ocker."

Immersed in the details of class organization, the thirty members of the senior council met bi-weekly during the fall to select the person to whom the ANNUAL would be dedicated, choose the style of graduation announcements, and officially approve the class budget. The approach of graduation found council members choosing the class gift and arranging senior vespers.

Another senior spring activity was Class Day. Elected by classmates, the four Class Day officers presented a light skit in which the Historian skimmed the highlights of the past four years while the Prophet predicted classmates' futures. Giftorian and Willmaker poked fun at seniors with puns and "burn" gifts left to the younger generation.

Mayflowers, Moonlight Accent Prom

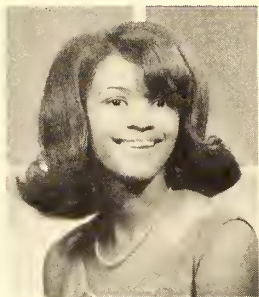

Green, yellow, blue, and white mayflowers reflected the moonlight as the music of the Phil-Marshall Orchestra raised the curtain on the opening act of "Mayflowers and Moonlight," the Junior Prom of the Class of '67.

Months of preparation by committees, under the direction of Prom Chairmen Grant Hawkins and Meg McArdle, proved fruitful when committee chairmen watched the soft music and colored lights blend to make their contributions fall smoothly into place.

Grad Dance Planned, Financed by Club 30

Chosen by the senior class president and treasurer, thirty of the most active senior boys incorporated business with pleasure when they directed their energy toward creating and planning the June Grad Dance.

Not being able to work well on empty stomachs, the Club 30 boys ate Sunday buffet dinners served by various members before they worked on dance plans. In order to finance their project each boy invested $30.00, and if he sold $48.00 of ads for the dance program, his investment was returned.

Remembrances of a Senior's Last Year . . .

Teenage buyers spend thousands annually for their basic needs, food, clothing, and amusement. Cheeseburgers, french fries, cokes, and candy eat up our weekly allowances. Larger sums, perhaps earned in after-school jobs, are squandered on the latest fashions and fads, but we rationalize our extravagances by masking them as necessities.

Preparing for participation in the adult business world, teenagers establish reciprocal relationships with community business men. Teenagers have part-time jobs; in return, they patronize the businesses which satisfy their desires and needs.

Acknowledgement

The 1967 ANNUAL staff has tried to give the student body a book which they will cherish as a reminder of one of their most memorable high school years, a special year for them and their school. This year Shortridge has received the honor of becoming a college preparatory school. Physically the school's appearance has not changed, but her atmosphere and mental outlook have changed so dynamically that the whole of this city has noticed it. For Shortridge it was a unique year which has now become a part of her history.

As a record of the year just passed, the 1967 ANNUAL will always be a part of each individual who worked on it, who gave his time and talents towards its completion. However, the people who molded this book are the students themselves. Their happiness, sadness, anticipation of things to come, and fear for the future of their school have provided the background for the 1967 ANNUAL. We have tried to capture all of these moods in this book. To the many who have helped and to my staff go my sincere thanks.
